Definitions of Consent

Consent

Consent is present when clearly understandable words or actions manifest a freely given agreement to engage in specific sexual or intimate conduct.

- Consent must demonstrate that all individuals understand, are aware of, and agree to the “who” (same partners), “what” (same acts), “where” (same location), “when” (same time), and “how” (the same way and under the same conditions) of the sexual activity.

- Consent must take the form of “clearly understandable words or actions” that reveal one’s expectations and agreement to engage in specific sexual activity.

- Consent must be freely given and cannot be the result of force.

Non-Consent

A person may appear to be giving consent but may not have the capacity to do so, in which case the apparent consent is not effective. If there is any doubt as to another person’s capacity to give consent, community members should assume that the other person does not have the capacity to give consent.

Being intoxicated or impaired by drugs or alcohol does not excuse one from the responsibility to obtain consent. Being intoxicated or impaired by drugs or alcohol is never an excuse to commit sexual violence.

Consent is not present when:

- A person’s lack of verbal or physical resistance does not constitute consent. This means that silence, passivity, submission, or the lack of verbal or physical resistance (including the lack of a “no”) should not – in and of themselves – be understood as consent.

- Submission resulting from the use or threat of force does not constitute consent. This means that violence, physical restraint, or the presence of a weapon, threats (indications of intent to harm, whether direct or indirect), intimidation (extortion, menacing behavior, bullying), coercion (undue pressure) or fraud (misrepresentation or material omission about oneself or the present situation in order to gain permission for sexual or intimate activity) should not be understood as consent.

- Consent cannot be inferred by an individual’s manner of dress, the giving or acceptance of gifts, the extension or acceptance of an invitation to go to a private room or location, or going on a date.

- Consent must exist at the time of the sexual activity. Consent to previous sexual activity does not imply consent to later sexual acts; similarly, consent to one type of sexual activity does not imply consent to other sexual acts. Consent may also be withdrawn at any time – provided the person withdrawing consent makes that known in clearly understandable words or actions.

- A person’s consent to engage in sexual activity with one person does not constitute consent to engage in sexual activity with another.
Consent is not present when an individual does not have the capacity to give consent, voluntarily or involuntarily, and/or is unable to understand the nature of the activity or give knowing consent due to circumstances, including without limitation the following:

- The person is underage (generally 17 in Illinois)
- Physical condition or mental disability that impairs the individual’s ability to give consent
- Consumption of drugs or alcohol (voluntarily or involuntarily), being in a state of unconsciousness, asleep, or any other state in which the person is unaware that sexual activity is occurring

Signs of Incapacitation
Some indicators of a lack of capacity to give consent due to consumption of drugs or alcohol may include, but are not limited to:

- When an individual demonstrates that he/she is unaware of where they are, how he/she got there, or why or how he/she became engaged in a sexual interaction
- Lack of full control over physical movements (for example, difficulty walking or standing without stumbling or assistance)
- Inability to effectively communicate for any reason (for example, slurring speech, difficulty finding words)

Sexual Exploitation
Sexual exploitation is taking sexual advantage of another person for the benefit of oneself or a third party when consent is not present. This includes, but is not limited to, the following actions (including when they are done via electronic means, methods, or devices):

- Sexual voyeurism or permitting others to witness or observe the sexual or intimate activity of another person without that person’s consent
- Indecent or lewd exposure or inducing others to expose themselves when consent is not present
- Recording any person engaged in sexual or intimate activity in a private space without that person’s consent
- Distributing sexual information, images, or recordings about another person without that person’s consent
- Recruiting, harboring, transporting, providing, or obtaining another person for the purpose of sexual exploitation
- Inducing incapacitation in another person with the intent to engage in sexual conduct, regardless of whether prohibited sexual conduct actually occurs
